NUMB 1469

SATURDAY, MAY 21. 1743.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland, and another from Flanders.

Petersbourg, May 4.

It is now settled, that Count Gallwin shall command the Fleet destin'd to act against the Swedes. The Gallies which are to be employ'd in the Descent will sail on the 14th, if they are not withheld by a pacifick Gale from Abn. Baron Mardefeld, Minister from the King of Prussia, has received from the Empress a Present of 3000 Rubles, and a Set of Chintz Hangings for a Bedchamber and Closet. It has snow'd here excessively for three Days together.

Stockholm, May 10. About 20,000 Dalcarnians took up Arms in order to oblige the Dyet to elect the Prince of Denmark; but they immediately laid them down again, the Secret Committee having sent for the Order of Peasants, and told them plainly, that in case they could preserve the Constitution no other Way, they must be obliged to have Recourse to Foreign Assistance; upon which they sent to their Brethren, and prevailed upon them to depart from their hostile System; so that, at present, we are easier here than we have been a long time. Our Fleet has Orders to act wholly on the Defensive, and, as most People think, the Court of Russia has issued the same Orders, the War seems to be, in some measure, suspended. The Libels that have flown about here have made a very strong Impression on the Ministry. Another great Man intimated, not long ago, in the Dyet, that he intended to follow the Example of Count Tessin; I mean, said he, to lay down my Employments, and to pass the rest of my Days in Peace. I would recommend it to your Excellency, said Colqnel Read, first to restore your Country's Peace.

Geneva, May 1. The Marquis de la Mina is more and more embarrassed by the Conduct of the French Court. It has absolutely refused to send Troops on account of the New Treaty of Neutrality concluded with the King of Sardinia, so that all the Assistance he is to expect from his most Christian Majesty, amounts to no more than a very slender Train of Artillery, and some Ammunition. Besides, he has received a Courier from Madrid, with Advice, that the King of Portugal is arming, at the Request, as it is believed, of the English Court; which will oblige the Catholick King to encamp 20,000 Men upon his Frontiers.

Schanderhoff, May 3. Prince Lobkowitz is making all the necessary Dispositions for the Opening the Campaign. Veldt-Marshall Merc is arrived in his Camp, in order to command under him. As soon as Prince Charles and Count Khevenhuller advance towards Marshal Broglie, his Highness will attack Stadthamhoff; for we are thoroughly satisfied, that the French cannot take the Field, and leave Troops enough to defend all their fortified Posts. General Festitz has sent us Advice, that an Epidemical Distemper has again broke out in Egria, which carries off many of the Garrison, and dispirits the rest.

A Letter from Veldt-Marshall Seckendorff to his Imperial Majesty, dated New-Orting, May 10.

Sir,

Your Imperial Majesty will receive by Count Rampalli, an Account of the unlucky Affair that happened Yesterday. I rode Post hither To-day by Noon, to prevent, as far as in me lay, the fatal Consequences of that Affair. Thanks be to God, upon my Arrival I found General News with upwards of 1200 Horse, who escaped that fatal Defeat. It was between six and seven in the Morning, Yesterday, that the Attack began. The Enemy took our People in Flank and Rear. I shall be able to give your Majesty a very particular Account, as soon as I have the Returns from the several Officers, of how many their respective Regiments have suffer'd. For, in the whole, the Loss amounts to about 1000 Horse. As to the Infantry, I am able to say nothing; but I hope to be able to send some Intelligence to the Prince of Saxe-Heldberghausen. I remain here, in order to draw together such as are flying; and as soon as I have done this, I shall apply myself to remedy, as far as I can, the Effects of this Mischief. If the French would pass the Iser with 30, or 35 Battalions, and 40, or 45 Squadrons, we should soon stop the Progress of the Enemy; but this must be done without Loss of Time, and they must advance as far as the Wiltz, for I have already pass'd the Iser, in order to join them. I shall send To-morrow Morning another Courier, with all the Intelligence I can; at present, I hear nothing with Certainty of the Enemy, except that they have been seen partly on the Heights of Braunsau, and partly on the other Side, towards Kainshoven.

Munich, May 18. The Emperor, attended by his Prime Minister Count Thoring, Marshal Seckendorff, and Count Prifing, set out the Day before Yesterday for the Castle of Wolzsch, within four Leagues of Ingoldstadt. Marshal Broglie met them there, with most of the French Generals, and it was resolv'd, in a Council of War, that the two Armies should immediately join near Landshut, in order to put a Stop to the Progress of the Austrian Arms; and Yesterday in the Evening his Imperial Majesty return'd hither. It was absolutely owing to the French Precautions that General Minucci, and his Troops, were sacrific'd; as appears by the Relation printed in our Gazetteer, by Authority.

Ratisbon, May 20. The Austrian Hussars make Incursions to the Brink of the Iser, and have even pass'd that River, and plunder'd such Bailiwicks of Bavaria that had any Thing left. On the 16th a great Detachment of Prince Charles's Army pass'd the Wiltz, and the next Morning attack'd Dingelfingen, on the Iser; the French Commandant refus'd to surrender, though they offer'd him Terms. The Dispute lasted for several Hours, but the Austrians put an End to it by setting the Town on Fire, and the French were obliged to abandon it. We learn from Straubingen, that the Prince of Conti was arriv'd there from Dingelfingen, and that Marshal Broglie was set out for the Imperial Court.

To the AUTHOR of the DAILY GAZETTEER.

S I R,

Being inform'd that the first Paragraph of my Letter of Yesterday has been understood to imply, that no Credit should be given to whatever comes from Georgia, I think it proper to inform you, that this Construction is no way agreeable to my Intention, which is confin'd to a certain Quarter from whence my Character has been attacked. I am,

Friday Morning.

Your Humble Servant,

Alexander Vander Dussen.
